Policy Statement

The Children Youth and Families Act 2005 identifies a range of professionals who are mandated to report to Child Protection when they have formed a belief on reasonable grounds that a child or young person is in need of protection from significant harm as a result of sexual abuse or physical injury.

Any person who is registered as a teacher under the Education and Training Reform Act 2006, or any person who has been granted permission to teach under that Act, including principals and teachers in training, is mandated to make a report to Child Protection. In the course of undertaking their professional duties, mandated staff members are required to report their belief, when the belief is formed on reasonable grounds that a child is in need of protection from significant harm as a result of sexual abuse or physical injury. School Nurses, SSSO staff and social workers are also mandated under the act.

Forming a Belief

A person may form a belief on reasonable grounds that a child in in need of protection after becoming aware that a child or young persons health, safety to wellbeing is at risk and the child's parents are unwilling or unable to protect the child. Reasonable grounds could include:

- A child or young person who states they have been physically or sexually abused
- A child or young person who reports they know someone who has been physically or sexually abused (they may be talking about themselves)
- Someone who knows the child or young person has reported that the child or young person has been physically or sexually abused
- The child or young person shows signs of physical or sexual abuse
- The staff member is aware of persistent family violence or parent substance misuse, psychiatric illness or intellectual disability that is impacting on the child or young person's safety, stability or development.
- The staff member observes signs or indicators of abuse, including non-accidental or unexplained injury, persistent neglect, poor care or lack of appropriate supervision
- A child's actions or behaviour may place them at risk of significant harm and the child's parents are unwilling or unable to protect the child or young person.

Reporting a belief

If two people in the same school form the same belief the report need only be made once. If one staff member has a different view from another staff member about making a report and the staff member continues to hold the belief that a child is in need of protection, that person is obliged to make a report to Child Protection.

Teachers are encouraged to discuss any concerns about the safety and wellbeing of students with a member of the leadership team. If a principal or ember of the leadership team does not wish to make a mandatory report, this does not discharge the teacher's obligation to do so if they have formed a reasonable belief that abuse may have occurred. If the teacher's concerns continue, even after consultation with the a member of the principal team of school leadership team that teacher is still legally obliged to make a mandatory report of their concerns.
